

MORNING APPEAL.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 28

The free traders in Congress will no doubt oppose the demand for an increase of the tariff on prunes on the ground that it will make them dearer to the consumer. It is not at all certain such a result would temporarily ensue, but it is absolutely demonstrable that the desired protection would so stimulate the industry of prune-growing that in a short time the fruit would be much cheaper than at present in the United States. This has been the case with every protected industry whenever the production of the protected article on a large scale was possible. The explanation is simple. The immense area of our country is a natural promoter of competition, and the inevitable result of extensive competition is lower prices. Unless the free traders can bring some better argument to bear than their hackneyed one that the price of an article is increased by the amount of the protection accorded they had better pull in their horses, for nothing is so well established as the fact that protection, by enlarging the area of competition, reduces prices.

The storm will make it very hard for the Indians this Summer. The quail, rabbits, grouse and small game are entirely knocked out. Many of the robes worn by the Indians in Winter are made from the pelts of the rabbits trimmed with feathers. They will feel the absence of the small game in a great measure, and the scarcity will rob them of many conveniences.

When the compositors yell for copy and the devil wants to rip the canvas off the feed board of the press to catch water from the ceiling and everybody swears that the railroad news is the production of a reporter with the delirium triangles, then it dawns upon the editor that a country paper is a good thing to commit suicide with.

The APPEAL is having an addition put on its regular office to accommodate the exchanges that will come piling in on us when the blockade is opened. When the Chronicle and Examiner arrive the new dealers will have to put on a small boy for each subscriber so as to get them around in time.

HEAVY EXPENSE.—The storm is costing the V. & T. $1,000 a day and furnishing work for 150 men. The detailed engines which flew the track Sunday are in such a condition that it is impossible to tell what the damage amounts to. There is now a large force of men engaged in clearing the tracks and a train from Virginia can be expected today. No rain has fallen in the mountains and the snow is quite liable to drift on the road between here and Reno at any time. The high altitude of the range of hills and the scarcity of rain in that vicinity will prevent the snow from packing so as to keep from drifting. With this peculiarity of the range we must expect to be locked in that direction for some time to come.

How to Get Along Well.

Pay as you go.
Never "cool" in business matters.
Do not kick every one in your path.
Learn to think and act for yourself.
Keep ahead rather than behind the times.
Don't stop to tell stories in business hours.
Have order, system, regularity, and promptness.
Use your brains rather than those of others.
Do not meddle with business you know nothing of.
A man of honor respects his word as he does his bond.
No man can get rich by sitting around stores and saloons.
If you have a place of business, be found there when wanted.
Learn to say no. No necessity of snapping it out dog-fashion, but say it firmly and respectfully.
Help others when you can, but never give what you cannot afford to, simply because it is fashionable.
